What is the purpose of the National Supplemental Screening Program (NSSP)?

The purpose of this screening program is to determine for U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) former workers whether or not they may have developed an occupationally related illness as the result of their work at U.S. DOE facilities. As a former worker, you will be offered job specific medical examinations. There will be no cost for the medical examinations. If you are found to possibly have an occupationally related illness, you will be referred to your private physician for follow-up and to the Department of Labor (DOL) to determine your benefit status for further medical evaluation. Participation in the NSSP is completely voluntary. You may choose not to be in the program. If you agree to be in the program, you may withdraw from the program at any time. Your consent is indicated using the Informed Consent Form at the end of this Information Sheet.

Who is sponsoring this program?

DOE sponsors and funds this program through the Office of Environment, Health, Safety and Security. Oak Ridge Associated Universities (ORAU) in Oak Ridge, Tennessee manages the program for DOE with its program partners: National Jewish Health (NJI); the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center (UCHSC) in Denver, Colorado; Comprehensive Health Services (CHS) in Cape Canaveral, Florida; and Axion Health, Inc. in Denver, Colorado.

Who can receive a medical examination through the NSSP?

The NSSP can provide medical examinations to former DOE employees from any facility regardless of where they are living.

Do I have to have the NSSP medical examination or do I have to have all of the tests performed that are offered under the NSSP?

No. Your participation in this medical screening program is strictly voluntary. You may refuse any of the tests offered to you. If you change your mind, you are free to participate further in the program at any time. Talking with your family, your doctor, or other people you trust may help you decide. The NSSP medical professionals and staff can also help answer any questions that you might have and may be contacted at 1-866-812-6703.
What will happen if I decide to have the NSSP medical examination?

You will be scheduled by the NSSP team to have a medical examination and associated tests in an occupational medicine office. Depending on your specific exposures and the type of work you performed while employed at a DOE facility, a typical NSSP medical examination may include the following:

- review of your work/exposure history
- physical examination
- height, weight, and vital measurements
- breathing test
- chest x-ray
- blood draw (for several types of blood tests including a test for beryllium sensitization)
- urine specimen collection
- test for blood in the stool
- hearing test
- vision screening

A blood specimen will be taken from a peripheral vein, usually in your arm. There is little physical risk in the blood draw procedure. In a few people, slight pain and a small area of bruising may occur at the site of the blood draw. The bruising usually subsides in 3-5 days.

When will I receive the results of my NSSP medical examination?

It should take 6 to 8 weeks for you to receive a letter from the NSSP physicians informing you of your medical examination results.

What happens if a medical abnormality is found during the medical examination?

The program physician will give you the results of the medical tests with a recommendation that you provide all of this information to your personal physician for inclusion in your medical file and for any appropriate follow-up. The medical screening program will NOT contact your physician directly except in an emergency or at your request. You should be aware that – as with most tests – the medical tests performed during the examination can yield results that are incorrect or unclear. It is important that you share the results of the program examination with your personal physician as part of your continued health care.

If there is an abnormal result that could impact your health in the near future, you will be notified of the result by an NSSP physician or nurse within two business days of the program’s receipt of the result. An attempt will be made to contact you by phone. A copy of the abnormal result(s), along with a cover letter, will also be sent to your physical address by Federal Express. The information contained in this urgent notification will also be contained in the final letter.

What are the costs and benefits to me if I participate in the program?

There is no financial cost to you for the screening examination. The program will pay for the medical examination and associated tests. Due to the short distance typically travelled for an NSSP examination, travel reimbursement is usually not necessary but may be allowed for participants living in remote areas. All NSSP screening examination travel and lodging costs must be pre-authorized by an ORAU representative in order to receive reimbursement. Pre-authorization may be obtained by calling the NSSP at 1-866-812-6703. The principal benefits to you are the results of the medical examination. You also have the opportunity to contribute to our understanding of health as it may relate to exposures as the result of working at DOE facilities.

The program will not pay for any follow-up medical care. You may or may not elect to follow any recommendation or referral made by the program physicians.

The NSSP staff will make sure you have the information you need if you wish to apply for benefits under the
Only the DOL may determine if a worker meets the qualifications for benefits.

In the event of injury resulting from participating in this program, you should contact the NSSP at 1-866-812-6703. If you are injured as a direct result of taking part in this program, we pay for transportation costs to and from your personal doctor or medical center. Neither the NSSP nor the Federal government will be able to provide you with medical treatment, either long-term or short-term, or financial compensation except as may be provided through whatever remedies are normally available by law. The project director, Donna Cragle, will be responsible for reporting any adverse events to DOE and to the Central DOE Institutional Review Board.

What will happen to the records of the medical examination results?

Your test results will be treated as confidential medical records (to be maintained for 75 years after your last examination) and used or disclosed only as provided by the Privacy Act of 1974, the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), or as required by a court order or under other law. The results of tests and examinations may be published in technical reports or presented at scientific meetings, but will not identify any individuals. The results of your medical examination and other screening tests will be made available to you and, upon your request, to your personal physician.

This voluntary medical screening program will provide a medical examination at no cost to you. Identifiable information about you and your test results will be placed in a secure database that will be used by the surveillance team to notify you of results and keep track of where you are in the medical screening process. It is possible that at some time in the future, other researchers who are studying occupationally related illnesses in the DOE workforce may request access to the information contained in this database. The information will not be given to any researchers unless their proposed use of the information is reviewed and approved by an Institutional Review Board (IRB), which is required by law to review research proposals involving humans as participants to ensure protection of their rights and welfare. Prior to information being released, an IRB review will be performed concerning the scientific merit of the research and the methods proposed to ensure that the human participation is justified and ethical.

The results of your medical examination may be available to the people listed below. Some of these people may require access to records that identify you by name:

1. The ORAU NSSP staff who will review your results and maintain permanent files for your records
2. Physicians from ORAU, National Jewish Health (NJH) and the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center
   (UCHSC) who will review your results and explain whether further testing is necessary for you
3. Data specialists from Axion Health, Inc. who will maintain the computer records and web site for the NSSP
4. Medical support staff at Comprehensive Health Services (CHS) who will make your appointment for your examination and send you information before your appointment

5. Others as required by the ADA, the Privacy Act of 1974, or as required by court order or under another law

With your consent indicated on the last page of this form, the identifiers will be removed from your test results and the de-identified data will be stored in a database called the Comprehensive Epidemiologic Data Resource (CEDR). This database is maintained by DOE.

What laws protect my privacy if I consent to participate in the NSSP?

State medical and nursing licensing boards enforce codes of ethics that require doctors and nurses to keep medical information confidential. The Privacy Act prevents unauthorized access to your records without your permission. The information in the records must be handled in accordance with the ADA and the Privacy Act of 1974. The consent form you sign also provides additional protection.

Can privacy and confidentiality of my medical records be guaranteed?

No. Access to or release of records could be required under court order, but it is unlikely. Records would also be available as the Freedom of Information Act or Privacy Act provide, such as a showing of compelling circumstances affecting the health and safety of an individual, etc. If you apply for another job or for insurance, you may be requested to release the records to a future employer or an insurance company. Personal identifiers will not be published in any reports.
